is governed principally by the concerns of India's food security, maximising farm incomes and earning foreign exchange. Review of export performance of agricultural products is an on-going process and accordingly policy interventions are made, as and when considered necessary, with a view to making agricultural exports increasingly viable while keeping in view the domestic requirements.

Export Policy is being constantly updated and export regime in respect of agricultural products has been liberalised. Very few items are now either prohibited for exports or their exports restricted or are subject to quantitive ceiling. Major items for which the exports are banned include cow meat, beef, wheat, onions and sugar (except for sugar under preferential quota to EU/USA).

The agricultural products exported from India include tea, coffee, raw cotton, rice (basmati and non-basmati), coarse grains, tobacco, spices, cashew, seasame and niger seeds, oil meal extractions, sugar horticulture and flori culture products, fresh fruits and vegetables, processed fruits and juices.
